Distinctive Custom Homes

After graduating from Indiana University with a degree in business administration, Carl McIntyre was hired as a building supervisor. By 1992, just a few years later, he founded McCordsville-based Carrington Homes, Inc. along with his parents Chuck and Sandy McIntyre. Since that time, Carrington Homes has built over 200 homes in, and around Hancock County.

“Hancock County is a great place to live and to build,” he says. “It has very affordable land prices, good schools and great people.”

The company specializes in building custom homes starting from $250,000. One luxury estate home topped $3.5 million, but that is the exception rather than the norm. The company also does remodeling projects, completing nearly 20 residential projects in 2008 ranging from $5,000 to $200,000.

“One unique benefit we offer customers is our 15-year history of offering EPA-certified, Energy Star homes,” Carl says. “We not only guarantee that we’ll build you an Energy Star home as defined by the EPA, but we back it up by having each and every home tested and submitted to the EPA by a certified energy rater.”

Carrington Homes is a five-time recipient of the Hancock County Builder of the Year award and a two-time recipient of the Builders Association of Greater Indianapolis Builder of the Year award. Carl has been on the Board of Directors for BAGI for nine years and was president of BAGI in 2007. He is also a past president of the Hancock County Council.
