Custom Homes of Distinctive Quality

Ken and Dale Langhans met in New York, where Ken, a union carpenter, gained invaluable experience rebuilding beach houses on Long Island and mansions in the Hamptons. Dale, originally from Indianapolis, was a sales representative for an Indiana-based company. After they married, they moved to Greenfield to be close to Dale's work and to raise their family. In 1996 Dale joined forces with her husband, lending her sales expertise to his building skills and Kendaleton Builders was formed. Between them they have 50 years of building experience.

"This is our home," Dale says. "We have become a part of the community, and most of our marketing efforts are right here in Hancock County." Dale has served as treasurer and served on the board of directors for the Greater Greenfield Chamber of Commerce. In 2002 it named her "Business Woman of the Year." She is also on the board of the Hancock County Economic Development Council and the Hancock County Builders Council, which named her "Builder of the Year" in 2002 and 2004. Currently she serves on the board for the Builders Association of Greater Indianapolis.

Kendaleton Builders builds custom homes in all price ranges, primarily for move-up and luxury homebuyers. It also offers remodeling services. In 2001 the company partnered with Energy Star to build homes that met those standards. The company was a Platinum Award winner in the $167,000 to $349,000 category in the 2008 Hancock County New Home Tour.

"It's the little details in the home that make a home extraordinary," Dale says. "I think that sums it up for most of our homes."
