

2002 Builder of the Year

Dave Parish is the vice president of P&W Development in New Palestine. Dave has served on the board of the Hancock County Builders Council since 2000 as vice president. In 2003 he will begin his two-year term as Hancock County Builders Council president. In addition to his work on the Hancock County Builders Council, Dave served on various governmental committees in Hancock County and with the Builders Association of Greater Indianapolis. He has worked in the residential home building industry for the past 13 years.

2002 Associate of the Year

Jim Smoot is the sales manager for Newcomer's Lumber in Greenfield. For the past seven years he has organized the council's golf outings, which raises funds for the council's scholarship program. He has also worked behind the scenes during the annual New Home Tour facilitating the signage needed to make the show a success.

Special Awards Announced

Dave Holloway of Central Indiana Power accepted an award in recognition of Central Indiana Power's longstanding support of the Hancock County Builders Council.

Jim Greig was also honored for his outstanding service to the Council. He has served the Hancock County Builders Council in a two-year term as secretary for the Board of Directors. He has also chaired the New Home Tour and holiday party charity fundraiser committees along with being involved on the public relations committee.